Korean War POW/MIA Report (JPAC)

Our friend, Phillip A. O’Brien OSD-DOMO submitted the following update on recovery and identification work.

Last time, we talked about numbers, this time I’d like to focus on methods. I’ll concentrate on one area, the holding camps at Suan that were used throughout 1951 and, for small numbers, afterwards. The Chinese and North Koreans did not return any remains from these camps during Operation Glory in 1954, and, in recent years, we have not been allowed to work in the area. But something very important happened when the North Koreans returned additional remains in 1990 through 1994. Of the 208 caskets, we believe that 97 of them came from at or near the Suan camps.

Men captured in January and February 1951 went to the Suan Bean Camp. It was hit by an air raid late in April 1951, and the Chinese evacuated it quickly. But some men were not able to march out. They stayed at Bean Camp until overtaken by April 1951 POWs, who arrived in May, and helped to move them up to the Suan Mining Camp, about seven miles away. Some of these men left the Mining Camp in June. Like the men who left the Bean Camp in April, they were headed north for camp 1. Then in July 1951, more POWs arrived at the Mining Camp, these were mainly men who had been captured in May. The big movement north from Suan was in September, again to Camp 1. And others, still arriving or left behind, were trucked to Camp 5 in December.

Oh, by the way, don’t worry about camp names. There were other Bean Camps and Mining Camps, and at Suan, some men knew one as the other.

After the war, we tried to set things down as clearly as we could.
Chaplain’s Corner

Norman Hale, Chaplain

I will lift up my eyes to the hills—from whence comes my help? My help comes from the Lord, who made heaven and earth. Psalm 1:2-1

When troubles come, Satan wants us to look downward and inward. He wants us to keep our eyes on our problems, our worries, our sorrows. He wants us to try to climb out of the slippery pit of despair using our own feeble resources.

True help, however, comes only from above. When we need strength, we should seek out someone who is stronger than we are. The answer, then, is to look upward and outward—to look beyond our feeble selves to the Almighty Creator of heaven and earth. He has put His power at our disposal!

And when you lift up your eyes, you’ll find your heart lifted up as well— with the hope and comfort that comes from knowing that no crisis is too great for God to Handle.

I pray that problems come your way, that you remember, you have a God who you can depend on to hear and answer your prayers. I wish the best for each of you and hope to see you in Nashville. May God Bless You!

Korean War POW/MIA Report (JPAC)

The reason for telling this story about the Suan Camps is that we probably have remains in hand, right now, from the Bean Camp and Mining Camp, as well as the Peacefully Valley site where men stayed before reaching Suan. Within the 97 boxes, we probably have 200 men present, and that is about half of the men who died at the Suan Camps. Every day, anthropologists at the lab at Hickam AFB, Hawaii, are working to piece together these skeletal remains. The quality of the work done by the North Koreans was not very good and we sometimes find portions of the same man in different boxes. We know this because we can work with DNA samples as well as with the bones themselves. It just takes a great deal of time, man by man as we go.

Last newsletter, I mentioned that 16 men have now been identified from the 208 caskets. Five of these are POWs from the Suan Camps; Cpl Leslie Ray Heath, SFC Walter Leroy Hood, PFC Ross William Katzman, Cpl Arthur Leo Seaton and PFC John Morris Washington. The effort continues.

This is one reason I’ve asked so many questions at the reunions about this site. Several other men are being worked right now… I can’t say who until the families are notified and “release” the names. But I can tell you this: even with difficult burials, like those of the men who were killed in the air raid at the Bean Camp and those who washed down the hillside in the storm at the Mining Camp, we are able to “build” the remains for identification. I’ll have a different story next time.

Please just remember this, we haven’t written off any of the sites. If we can go, we will go. If the North Koreans have already worked there, we will do everything we can to press ahead with IDs. And until we can go “boots on ground,” we’ll keep on preparing.

Best to all! Phil O’Brien

Good News
ONE OF L COMPANY, 8TH CAV COMES HOME: the remains of PFC Henry D. Connell, MIA 2 November 1950, were returned to Hawaii for ID in 1993. He was recently ID'd by using family DNA and his remains were buried the weekend of May 14, 2006 in Springfield, Mass. He was in L Co, 8th Cav. CAV at U.San. Purple Heart w/OLC.

24TH DIVISION POW: Friday 31 March 2006. Roger Dumas was a machine gunner in the 19th Reg. Charlie Company. He was captured on November 4, 1950. During Operation Big Switch, Dumas, like so many others were not released from Camp # 5. The Pentagon never told Dumas’ family that he was ever a POW. His brother, Bob, sued the Secretory of the Army in Federal Court in 1982 and presented evidence that Dumas was a POW and abandoned in N. Korea after the War. The Federal Judge ruled in Bob’s favor and ordered the Secretary of the Army to reclassify Roger Dumas as a POW.

MISSING POWS: In the past two years, Assistant Secretary of Defense Jerry Jennings reported that he has viewed over a thousand recent live sighting reports of American POWs in North Korea. This astounding story is told in the documentary film, “Missing, Presumed Dead: The Search for America’s POWs,” winner of the Best Documentary Award, Fort Myers Beach Film Festival. The film was also screened in Congress and a DVD has been distributed to every member of Congress and the Senate by Congressman Ron Paul of Texas. Congressman Paul is hopeful the film will inspire his colleagues to become co-sponsors of HR 123, which will allow a House Select Committee to investigate abandoned POW/MIA’s.
